

IRAN-US CYBERATTACK: WHAT IS THE RISK?

American military actions against Iran have led to fears of retaliation and speculation about what form it might take. One possible avenue of retaliation is a cyberattack. How vulnerable to a foreign cyberattack is the country in general and Georgia Tech in particular? What factors would influence Iran's or any other adversary's decision to pursue that option?

27

JAN
Mon

Mon Jan 27 2020

4:30 P.M. - 6:00 P.M.

DM Smith Bldg, rm 105

Open to the public, all welcome

Speakers

Prof. Milton L Mueller, School of Public Policy

Director the M.S. degree programs in Cybersecurity (Policy).
Co-founder and director of the Internet Governance Project (IGP), a policy analysis center for global Internet governance.

Prof. Hans Klein, School of Public Policy

Conducts research on Internet governance and teaches courses on Internet & Public Policy.

Prof. Mark Zachary Taylor, School of Public Policy

Conducts research on innovation policy and teaches courses on US government, US foreign policy, and globalization