

“How to Save the World: Understanding Non-Profits and How Tech Students Can Help”

22

April

12:00 EST

Michelle Nunn

President and CEO -CARE

Ryan Shepard

VP of U.S Programming -CARE

Join Here: <https://primetime.bluejeans.com/a2m/register/kvgwgeyg>

Michelle Nunn, President, and CEO of CARE, and Ryan Shepard, CARE’s VP of U.S. programming, will discuss their organization’s work in the U.S. and abroad. CARE is a leading humanitarian organization that fights global poverty and provides lifesaving assistance in emergencies. They work around the globe to save lives, defeat poverty and achieve social justice. This virtual event is co-sponsored by the Georgia Tech Sam Nunn School of International Affairs, the School of Public Policy, and the Center for International Strategy, Technology, and Policy.

THE MEG & SAM FLAX LECTURE SERIES ON PUBLIC POLICY

invites top scholars, policymakers, and practitioners to speak to a wide audience of Georgia Tech students and faculty on issues of urgent importance in public policy. Our goal is not just a better understanding of current issues, but to get diverse perspectives on the proper role(s) for government in solving crucial problems. Because they practice at the cutting-edge of their fields, or on the front-lines of government policy, the Flax Lecturers speak not from philosophy or theory, but from facts, data, and experience. Topics range from science & technology policy to energy and the environment, from pandemic threats to sustainable development, from artificial intelligence and cyber-security to monetary policy, and even outer space. All Flax lectures are free of charge. Members of the broader Georgia Tech and Atlanta community are welcome to attend.